User system

First enter the police station system through the login interface. The first entry is the vehicle owner query page. The upper left corner of the page is the link for vehicle owner information, vehicle information and report information.

Users can directly click to enter different interfaces to query related information. The upper right corner is the password change and logout link. The user can change the password after entering the system. Of course, changing the password requires the user to enter the user name and old password to change it. If there is an error during the change process, there will be a corresponding error prompt. After the change is completed, click 'Submit' and it will be automatically saved as a new password and then jump back to the login page to log in again. In the vehicle owner query interface, police officers can search for a person by last name or driver's license number (by entering any of them in the system). If the person is not in the system, the system will prompt. The input information is not case-sensitive, and it is also suitable for partial name input queries. If there is no input in the search box, direct search will display all the contents of the table (This function is also applicable to other tables). On the vehicle information query page, the police officer can look up vehicle licence plate. The system will then show details of the car (e.g., type, colour etc.), the owner's name and license number. There is an 'add' button next to the query input box, click to enter the add vehicle information interface, if you add and find that there is no owner information, it will jump to the owner add interface to add the owner information, after the addition is completed, the query will display the newly added vehicle information. In the report query interface, the user can query the report information through the owner's license or the vehicle license, and can also modify the related report, but cannot add fine information. The user can also click the "Add" button to enter the report adding interface to add report information, the owner license, vehicle license and select the corresponding offence. If there is no corresponding vehicle or owner, first add the vehicle and owner information before adding the report. If you want to log out, click log out in the upper right corner to log out.

Administrator system

The administrator system logs in through the administrator account.

Compared with the user system, the administrator can add new users by clicking "Add User" in the upper right corner to enter the add user interface, or add fines and points in the table on the report query page.
